- In developing countries, many citizens do not have a record of their existence. A digital footprint drives financial inclusion.

Madrid, 17 September 2019 - PRESS RELEASE

Santander InnoVentures, Banco Santander's fintech venture capital fund, announced today an investment in Trulioo, a Vancouver-based global identity verification provider. This is InnoVentures's first investment in Canada and adds to the more than 25 fintech investments to date in the fund's global portfolio.

Trulioo provides instant global ID verification for five billion consumers and more than 250 million business entities in over 195 countries, serving a wide range of industries including tech, banking, retail, payments, online marketplaces and social media networks — all through a single API integration that allows companies to stay compliant with anti-money laundering and customer due diligence requirements around the world.

The company gives real-time access to hundreds of reliable data sources to instantly verify identities, enabling those who were previously excluded, opportunities to pursue a better life by participating in today's modern, digital economy. In developing countries, many citizens do not have a record of their existence. A digital footprint means they will no longer be invisible and drives financial inclusion.

Chris Gottschalk, senior advisor to InnoVentures, said: "We are excited to partner with Trulioo at an exciting time in the company's evolution and acceleration." Manuel Silva Martínez, partner and head of Investments at InnoVentures, said: "Santander is a key player in the global economy and, as the underlying transactions increasingly rely on digital infrastructure, the Trulioo solution is valuable in verifying and protecting all participants."

Stephen Ufford, CEO and founder of Trulioo, said: "Today, families, businesses and entire economies are being powered by the global shift towards a truly digital economy which is exciting but also opens us up to a whole new world of risk. We're committed to the fight against financial crime, money laundering and even election fraud, and bringing forward solutions backed by technology to stop it in its tracks."

InnoVenture's investment is part of a larger fundraise from Trulioo, which has raised a total of C$70 million in new funding, including 60 million in Series C financing led by Goldman Sachs, with participation from Citibank, Santander Innoventures and American Express, and 10 million in unannounced follow-on funding from early investors Blumberg Capital and BDC Capital from last year. This brings Trulioo's total capital investment since 2011 to C$96.6 million.
