ARE YOU BEING DISCREET ONLINE?

Sometimes we are so focused on one thing, that we don't get the full picture. Where you see a cup of coffee, others can see: your passwords, your credit card and much more.

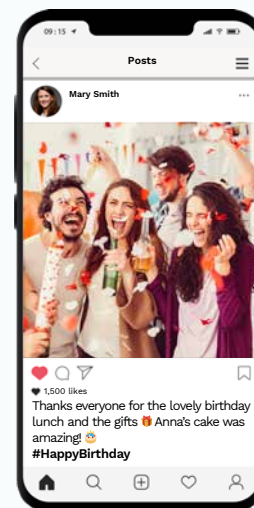

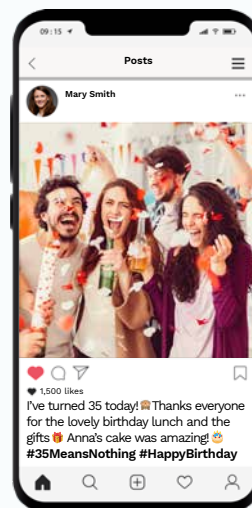

Criminals often use information online to gain your trust and trick you into sharing even more. This is known as social engineering. Make sure you know what is out there about youself and stay alert.

Which small tweaks would make these posts less "revealing"?

By not showing your house number and turning off geolocation, you won't be revealing your full postal address.

By not showing how old you are turning or pointing out that your birthday is today, you won't be revealing your date of birth.

Both the postal address and date of birth are commonly used to verify your identity.
